SUPREME COURT CONDEMNS SIT-DOWN STRIKES

REPORT NAZIS HAVE BOMB OF GREAT POWER Senate Committee Is Told of Mysterious War Instrument

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The senate military committee made public today testimony that Germany had developed a new bomb of terrific power and that the army had been able to procure only scant information regarding it.

The testimony was given January 25 by Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, during committee consideration of the administration's army expansion bill, which was approved by the committee last week and scheduled to come up for senate consideration today.

Arnold was questioned about the bomb by Senator Clark (D-Mo.), who said he had been informed of it by Lester P. Barlow, an inventor connected with the Martin Aircraft company in Baltimore.

Clark said Barlow had advised him that the new explosive was made of "liquid oxygen" and "would render every plane in the world obsolete because its destructive radius is so much greater than any explosive heretofore used."

"We have received reports from abroad that the Germans had this new explosive," Arnold replied. "One that was so powerful that when they tried it in Barcelona it killed every human being within the range of a quarter of a mile and knocked people unconscious for a distance of half a mile."

Conflicting Reports

"We get so many reports from abroad that it is rather difficult to determine which one you will accept 100 per cent and which one you accept with a grain of salt."

"Further investigation indicated that the Germans did have some kind of bomb loaded with compressed air, carbon and some form of oil, which combination was supposed to have provided a terrific detonating effect when the bomb hit the ground, and in proof of that we received pictures showing halves of buildings torn away in Barcelona, x x x But we have not been able to get any more information on it."

Clark said Barlow advised him the Army and Navy had refused to make tests of the new explosive. Arnold replied Barlow had never discussed the matter with him.

"I would like very much to find such an explosive," Arnold said. "As I said, as soon as we heard of this new explosive used by the Germans we took advantage of every available opportunity to find out what it was, and we are still trying to find out what it is, with a view to utilizing it in our own bombs."

Lack Military Plans

Secretary Woodring, the committee report disclosed, testified the Army does not have military plans drawn up for use in the event of war. It does have a newly-revised industrial mobilization plan and drafts of bills granting special powers to the President, he said.

In the Senate, meanwhile, Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate labor committee said it would be unwise to hold hearings on proposed Wagner Labor amendments while A. F. of L.-C. I. O. peace negotiations impended. He announced hearings set for March 10 were postponed indefinitely.

Senator Lodge (R-Mass) charged Secretary Morgenthau with refusing to "inform congress or the American people" about operations of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund. He said that specifically the treasury chief had declined to reveal how the fund, created as a result of dollar devaluation, had realized a $12,000,000 profit.

Approve Biddle Nomination

Meanwhile, the senate judiciary committee approved President's nomination of Francis Biddle, counsel for the special congressional committee that investigated the TVA, to be a member of the third federal circuit court.

The house agriculture committee was urged by Louis B. Ward, Detroit, Mich., farm representative to approve cost-of-production farm legislation.

THREE ASPHYXIATED

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 27.—(AP)—After William Showers failed to report for work today, firemen found the bodies of Showers and his wife and their adopted daughter, Alice, 9, in their beds. Coroner Daniel Bernoski said they evidently were asphyxiated by carbon monoxide fumes from a stove.

News Oddities

Bits of the Unusual
Reported by Associated Press

Brigham City, Utah, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A jackrabbit ordinarily has "plenty" of ears with just two of 'em. Hunters in a rabbit drive near here killed one with four ears.

Fort Payne, Ga., Feb. 27.—(AP)—For years, the eight dogs of Fletcher Murphy, 63-year-old recluse, had guarded him well. When a night fire caught his pine-pole shack, they guarded him too well, standing off would-be rescuers.

Clinton, Ia., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A baffled bridegroom-to-be, Vincent C. Gorzney, Galesburg, Ill., appealed to police here Saturday night after he lost his wedding license. Gorzney and his wife-to-be, Dorothy Fletcher, Morrison, Ill., returned to their respective homes unmarried but hoping the missing paper will turn up soon.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Ann Engman, 9, didn't come home for supper last night. When she finally returned—shortly after midnight—she explained she had forgotten to tell her mother she was going to a neighborhood movie.

There was a double feature and she sat through three shows for a grand total of nine hours.

Jasper, Ind., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Sherle, 28, awaiting arrival of a twin to a son born Feb. 15, got out of bed yesterday to have dinner with the rest of the family.

It was the first time she had been up since the first twin's birth. Her physician, Dr. L. A. Salb, could not say when the other twin would be born.

Mrs. Sherle ate with her husband and three other children, the oldest 11.

Italian's Crack At Metropolitan Brings Reaction

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Remarks critical of the Metropolitan Opera attributed to Beniamino Gigli by some provincial Italian newspapers brought a quick reaction today from American singers.

The Italian papers quoted Gigli as saying the Metropolitan Opera, in which he appeared in New York, was in a state of decadence, partly because financial conditions forced it to open its doors to artists who were chosen "with judgment not too rigorous."

Gigli also was quoted as describing three American singers, Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore and Richard Crooks, as stars "who cost less and substitute notoriety created by publicity for intrinsic value."

In Rome today Gigli's secretary said the quotations attributed to the tenor were "inexact."

Tibbett, in Detroit, fired back "as one publicity hunter to another, x x x I like this country and I think Gigli doesn't."

Miss Moore, in Newtown, Conn., suggested Gigli was disgruntled because "he came back this year and was greeted with only a lukewarm reception."

Eight Injured in An Accident Near Hudson

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Eight persons injured in the collision of two automobiles on route 51 near Hudson were being treated in a hospital here today. The accident occurred Sunday.

The injured were: Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Bassett of Minocqua, Wis.; Mrs. Helen MacMillan of Freeport and her three children, Clarice, 6, Arleen, 8, and Mary Helen, 3; Mrs. Willia Rhoads and Mrs. George Woessner, both of Shannon.

Roosevelt Piles Up Miles To Add To His Traveling Record

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, the only chief executive to steer the ship of state frequently from a ship at sea, is piling up mariner's mileage like a Clipper ship skipper.

When he returns from his present Caribbean trip, he will have traveled more than 150,000 miles since taking office in 1933. Almost half of it has been on the sea.

William Howard Taft traveled 114,000 miles, but he arrived in the White House along with the automobile and much of his touring was on wheels.

The ocean is not incidental with Roosevelt. It has been a hobby and a part of his life since the days when he sat barefooted on his grandfather Delano's stone wharf at Fairhaven, Mass., and dreamed of being a sailor.

It was only natural when he came to Washington first in 1913

EFFORTS TO CUT HINES' SENTENCE THREATENS CHIEF

Magistrate Refuses to Re-sign; Welcomes an Inquiry

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Legal maneuvers in the making today to stave off a possible long-term prison sentence for Tammany district leader James J. Hines, whose conviction Saturday of selling political protection to a numbers racket also threatened to unseat a Tammany magistrate.

Apparently ignoring Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's ultimatum that he resign or face impeachment, Magistrate Hulon Capshaw declared he would welcome an investigation by the appellate division of Supreme Court, to which his case would go.

An appointee of two Tammany mayors, Capshaw was accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of having dismissed policy cases against Henchmen of the slain Dutch Schultz at the behest of Hines, convicted of partnership with the erstwhile Public Enemy No. 1.

Although he admitted under cross-examination that he made an "error" in an earlier version of a policy trial, Capshaw denied at Hines' trial that he had been influenced improperly by the Tammany chieftain, as charged by Dewey in a bill of particulars last summer. Capshaw has been under suspension.

To Sentence Gangsters

Two confessed Schultz gangsters who testified against Hines—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the gang's lawyer, and Harry Schoenhaut, his bookkeeper—were scheduled for sentencing today, but Justice Ferdinand Pecora, who will commit them, was ill and a postponement was indicated.

Meanwhile, Lloyd Paul Stryker, defense counsellor, planned to confer with Hines, stunned and weary after the sweeping verdict of the blue-ribbon jury which convicted him on all 13 counts of a lottery indictment, carrying a maximum penalty of 27 years in prison.

Stryker's first move was expected to be an application for a certificate of reasonable doubt to keep his 62-year-old, white haired client out on bail pending appeal, which might be prolonged for three years through state and federal courts.

Hides from Wife

His $20,000 bail continued pending sentencing March 13, Hines hid himself with his distraught wife yesterday. His adversary, 36-year-old Dewey, observed another triumph over the staggering Tammany Tiger by receiving reporters.

Conviction of the ex-blacksmith of uptown Manhattan, for 26 years a Tammany power and once known as a New Deal patronage agent, revived again speculation over the Republican prosecutor's 1940 presidential prospects.

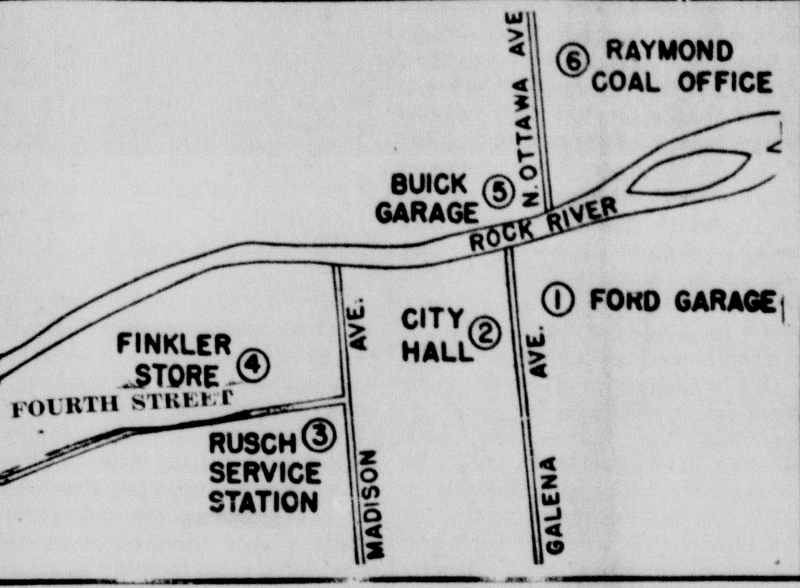

While political leaders opined that New York's 90-odd delegates to the 1940 Republican convention would boost Dewey for the nomination, Dewey said, "I am busy being district attorney."

Dewey has defeated Tammany once at the polls, come within 68,000 votes of being governor, convicted 72 racketeers, and aided in forcing Federal Judge Martin T. Manton from the bench and sending former stock exchange president Richard Whitney to prison.

BELGIAN CABINET QUILTS

Brussels, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The cabinet of Hubert Pierlot, which had been formed only last Tuesday, resigned today.

Flu Epidemic Spreading In Southern Area

Centralia, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—With 580 of 2000 pupils absent on account of illness, principally influenza, the Centralia public schools closed today until next Monday to prevent a further spread of the disease, now prevalent in many southern Illinois communities.

The Centralia high school with 186 of 1180 students absent did not close.

The Kimmunity grade and high school which closed last Wednesday on account of the epidemic reopened today with 45 per cent of the pupils absent from the grade school and about 20 per cent absent from the high school. Principal V. V. Barcroft said the school board considered dismissing the grade school pupils but this had not been done this afternoon.

Public schools closed at Effingham by proclamation last Wednesday reopened today with 80 per cent attendance. The Sacred Heart parochial school reported an attendance of 85 per cent. St. Anthony school will reopen Tuesday.

At Watson, near Effingham, the schools were closed until Wednesday.

The Mt. Vernon high school, with an enrollment of 1130, had 175 absentees today, and there were 299 out of the grade schools which have an enrollment of 2175. Neither system has been closed.

At Anna Dr. A. F. Barnett, managing officer of the state hospital, banded all public gatherings at the hospital and visiting was limited to persons calling to see relatives who are bedfast. The action was taken after a few cases of the illness were reported among employees and patients.

STATE REPORT

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP) Dr. A. C. Baxter, acting state health director, said 307 new cases of influenza were reported today to send the prevalence rate higher than that recorded for the past few days.

The director said 1,479 cases were recorded for the week ending today, compared to 955 the previous week, while pneumonia cases numbered 822 and 645, respectively. However, he declared the pneumonia increase was not unusual and could be expected to continue for two or three weeks.

CRIPPLED VESSEL BRINGS IN CREW OF SUNKEN BOAT

Freighters Crashed in Atlantic Off New Jersey Coast

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The crippled North German Lloyd freighter Wiegand steamed back to New York today carrying 32 crew members of the Bull Line freighter Lillian rescued after the vessels collided in a dense fog.

The crash occurred at 6:12 P. M. (CST) last night 13 miles east of Barnegat lightship off the New Jersey coast, about 70 miles from New York.

The 3,842-ton American freighter, bringing a cargo of sugar from Puerto Rico, began sinking rapidly after flashing an "SOS" and messaging it had rammed the German vessel. Within an hour its crew was forced to abandon ship in two lifeboats.

They bobbed about on cold choppy seas for more than an hour until they could be picked up. The Wiegand—apparently not seriously damaged—played its searchlight on the hull of the wallowing Lillian to keep the lifeboats from becoming lost in the darkness.

Operator Stayed By

William Helmbold, radio operator of the stricken ship, coolly stuck to his post to the last minute, calling for aid. At 7:06 P. M. he sent a final message, then "tied down" the key of his instrument. "Skipper just told me to get in boat," the message said, "Will keep key locked. So long and guess I will get my feet wet now. Ha."

For hours afterward radio listeners could hear the eerie distress signal humming through the night, growing fainter as the batteries weakened. At 3:01 A. M. the signal stopped.

Two coast guard vessels, the Campbell and Galatea, stood guard by the Lillian's all but submerged bulk to warn other ships away from the drifting wreck.

ANOTHER SOS

Boston, Feb. 27.—(AP)—An urgent call for aid today sent the Coast Guard cutter Cayuga speeding through stormy seas to the assistance of the Boston trawler Delaware, which radioed she was disabled, at the mercy of a heavy gale and drifting toward Sable island, N. S. deared "graveyard of the North Atlantic."

Coast guard officers said the Cayuga would require 24 hours to reach the Delaware, which carries a crew of 16 men under Captain Morton Selig. The trawler, a comparatively new Diesel vessel, was launched last year at Bath, Maine.

Labor Board Is Handed Couple of Blows Today

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Supreme Court administered two defeats to the National Labor Relations Board today, the first since the Wagner law was enacted in 1935.

In a decision by Justice Stone, it set aside an order by the board directing reinstatement of striking employees of the Columbian Enameling & Stamping Company, Inc., of Terre Haute, Ind.

Another decision, by Justice Roberts, set aside a board order directing the Sands Manufacturing Company of Cleveland, Ohio, to reinstate 48 employees.

Justice Stone asserted that the board's conclusion that the Columbian Company had refused to bargain with a labor union was "without support."

Justices Black and Reed dissented on both opinions. Justice Frankfurter did not participate in either.

Stone said in the Columbian Enameling case that while the labor act makes it the employer's duty to bargain with his employees, and failure to perform that duty entails serious consequences to him, it imposes no like duty on his employees.

The Roberts decision affirmed a ruling by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals against the board.

Sit-Downs Condemned

The court also condemned the action of employees who seized their employers' plant in a sit-down strike.

The decision, by Chief Justice Hughes, upheld the right of the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation to discharge employees who seized two key buildings of the plant in a 1937 sit-down strike.

Hughes characterized the "seizure and retention" of the property as a "high-handed proceeding without shadow of legal right."

A few minutes after the Chief Justice read his decision the court refused to review the contempt of court convictions of 39 Fansteel employees. They were charged with violating a state court injunction restraining them from continuing the sit-down strike and were given varying sentences.

"The employees," Chief Justice Hughes asserted, "had the right to strike but they had no license to commit acts of violence or to seize their employer's plant."

Premium on Force

"To justify such conduct because of the existence of a labor dispute or of an unfair labor practice," Hughes continued, "would be to put a premium on resort to force instead of legal remedies and to subvert the principles of law and order which lie at the foundations of society."

"As respondent's (Fansteel) unfair labor practices afforded no excuse for the seizure and holding of its buildings, respondent had its normal rights of redress."

"Those rights, in their most obvious scope, included the right to discharge the wrongdoers from its employ."

Justice Stone's opinion set aside a board order directing reinstatement of striking employees of the Columbian Enamel & Stamping Company, Inc., of Terre Haute, Ind. Roberts' opinion set aside a board order directing the Sands Manufacturing Company of Cleveland, Ohio, to reinstate 48 employees.

Partly Upheld

The majority decision delivered by Chief Justice Hughes upheld the labor board to some extent. It said the board's order requiring Fansteel to withdraw all recognition from Rare Metal Workers of America, Local No. 1, should be sustained.

Hughes said the court could not say "that there is not substantial evidence that the formation of this organization was brought about through promotion efforts" of Fansteel contrary to the labor act.

"Whether Rare Metal Workers of America Local No. 1 or any

FRANCO GIVEN RECOGNITION BY ENGLAND

French Cabinet Votes To Follow Action Of British

London, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today the British government's decision to recognize the nationalist regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco as the legal Spanish government.

He said the formal action for recognition was taken today.

"It seemed to the British government impossible to regard the Spanish republican government, scattered as it was and no longer exercising settled authority, as the sovereign government of Spain," he said.

Cries of "shame!" rose from the opposition as government supporters cheered the announcement that the French government was expected to announce similar recognition following the cabinet meeting in Paris this afternoon.

Chamberlain in his statement added:

"The British government have noted with satisfaction the public statements of General Franco concerning his determination to secure the traditional independence of Spain."

No Doubt of Outcome

"Even if the republican forces in the southern sector should continue to maintain some show of resistance," the prime minister said, "there can be no doubt now of the ultimate issue of the struggle, the prolongation of which can only result in further suffering and loss of life."

"As the result of the fall of Barcelona and the over-running of Catalonia, General Franco is now in control of the greater part of Spanish territory, both on and beyond the mainland."

"Included in this territory are the most important industrial centers in Spain and the sources of most of her productions."

"In these circumstances, His Majesty's government have decided to inform General Franco of their decision to recognize his government as the government of Spain and formal action has been taken in this sense today."

Cries of "Shame"

Laborites again shouted "Shame!" and Communist William Gallagher cried:

"Another betrayal of democracy!"

Chamberlain then stated:

Joliet Lovers Found Dead In Auto This Morn

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The bodies of William Engman, 18, a high school football captain, and his 17-year-old sweetheart, Ruth Virginia Underwood, were found today in an automobile parked in Pilcher Park behind a riding stable.

The young couple was identified by Engman's father, Arthur, who had been searching for them since they left last night to attend a movie. He said they had been going together steadily for several months and that members of their families thought they had eloped.

The car, which belonged to the senior Engman, was not opened pending the arrival of Coroner Lonus Brannon, and it was not ascertained immediately how the two met death.

Engman was a senior at the Joliet township high school, where he starred on the football field. Miss Underwood, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Underwood, was a junior student at the same school.

Two Sentenced For Poison Beer Murder

Detroit, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Ernest Demzik and his wife, Laura, convicted last week of killing an elderly man by placing "knockout drops" in his beer so they could rob him of 89 cents, were sentenced to life imprisonment today.

Mrs. Demzik screamed and collapsed in the court room as Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman pronounced sentence on her. She continued to scream as her husband was sentenced.

The Demziks were convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the death of Peter Vlohos, whose body was found in their room in a lodging house. They admitted in court they placed a chemical in Vlohos' beer while they drank together in a saloon, but asserted that they did not intend to kill him.

Tax Revision May Prove Sincerity of FDR

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Treasury experts are formulating drastic revisions of corporation taxes, it was learned today, to give tangible evidence to businessmen of the cooperation which administration officials have been proclaiming.

The proposed changes, designed to make business taxes slightly smaller and substantially simpler, will not be made public for at least a month, a high official said, because the treasury wants to gauge the March 15 income tax payments before offering a new tax bill.

The official, who declined to be quoted by name, explained the underlying purpose of the proposed revision as follows: "Businessmen have heard a lot of promises about cooperation. Now that they want something definite."

The official indicated the revisions would be aimed particularly at unifying into possibly two taxes the five different levies now paid by corporations and also at giving corporations larger allowances for capital asset losses.

He pointed out that corporations now pay an income tax, excess profits tax, undistributed profits tax, capital stock tax and Social Security tax.

The undistributed profits tax, whose imposition in 1936 aroused a storm of business protest, is a dead letter in present discussion, the official said, because the 1938 Congress substantially reduced it and provided for its automatic expiration at the end of this year.

Republicans In Hopeful Mood: Look To East

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Looking ahead to the 1940 presidential election, the Republican national committee declared today that its party could win by carrying New York and 21 states which it termed "unquestionably Republican" at present.

The committee said that on the basis of the 1938 election, the following states, with 221 electoral votes, were Republican:

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Oregon.

Along with New York's 47 electoral votes, these states could provide a majority in the electoral college. The committee listed New York and Idaho as "toss ups," and said Illinois and Montana, although classified as Democratic, were close to the border-line.

The Republicans have no normal chance of winning control of the senate in 1940 because only 23 Democrats will be up for re-election that year. The Democrats now fill 69 seats—20 more than a bare majority of the senate.

The Republicans, however, are expected to make a strong effort to capture control of the house. The national committee said 65 Republicans defeated for the house last November received more than 45 per cent of the vote.

How to Burn Coke

Place ample amount of kindling in fire-pot and when well ignited, add 2 or 3 shovels of coke. Gradually add more coke until fire-pot is full. Leave drafts open until a blue flame appears. Then close twist-damper in smokepipe from 1/2 to 3/4 (depending on strength of draft) and open cold air check accordingly. Leave checks in this position except when adding fuel. When more heat is desired, open draft in ash-pit door. Should this not give ample heat, open checks in smoke-pipe for a short time.

Real economy may be realized by firing coke in this manner. It is well to remember that coke is light and bulky and fire-pot must be heaped full to obtain satisfactory results.

When refueling fire, stir fire thoroughly to get ash down to grate. Then shake grates lightly until red sparks show in ash-pit. Coke will not burn out grates any quicker than other fuels if ash-pit is kept clean.

New Taxes Are Considered In Most of States

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—New taxes and licenses now being considered by 43 state legislatures threaten to nibble a bigger share of the consumers' dollars.

Legislators in session since the beginning of the year already have before them 403 new tax and license proposals and 79 tax increases, the National Consumers Tax Commission reported today. The proposals range from a tax of half-cent a cigarette in Washington to a levy on bachelors in Georgia.

"This total will be increased greatly in March, traditionally the heaviest month for introduction of tax legislation," said Mrs. Kenneth C. Frazier, president of the N. C. T. C., a women's tax education organization of which 3,700 local units have sprung up since last September.

"All indications," she said, "now point to this year as reaching a new high in tax proposals that penalize the consumer."

The measures on the various legislative calendars include such proposals as a levy against municipally-owned power plants, an increase in the gasoline tax from five to 20 cents, a new chain store tax, and a state tax on products imported from certain other states.

Tax discrimination between states is increasing, according to the commission's report. Arkansas has a proposal which would impose a tax of 25 per cent on milk, butter, cheese and apples shipped into that state from Washington, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa.

In New York

By GEORGE ROSS

New York—So the celebrities think they're going to have some privacy in New York, eh?

They won't. If Earl Blackwell and Ted Strong can help it.

This pair of lads has made a success of Celebrity Service—a service designed to totally wreck any visiting notable's private life.

It is a boon to autograph hounds, promoters, salesfolk, newsmen and headwaiters. And there is little the victim can do about it, except flee town or take to the Van Cortlandt Park woods.

There isn't much of a celebrity's life that the Messrs. Blackwell and Strong miss. Via their switchboard and dailly mimeographed bulletins, they are able to tell you what time Errol Flynn will pull in at Grand Central Terminal, the hotel he's stopping at, where he will be for lunch and dinner, and the names of the various night clubs he plans to visit, with the approximate location of his table.

Celebrity Service will calmly inform its subscribers, by phone or dispatch, the names of Grace Moore's lunch guests at "21," the champagne vintage that Beatrice Lillie ordered the night before at the Stork club and the boat and stateroom number that Peggy Wood has booked for her passage to Europe. It bulletins all the more important social events, giving details and the list of patronage at the better restaurants, even before the celebrity has had a chance to down his demi-tasse.

It does all this by canvassing the railroads, the hotels, the eating places all day long and by tips rendered from out of town by accomplices. And you'd be surprised at the number of busybodies who are helping to make Earl Blackwell and Ted Strong rich.

IN DADDY'S SONG STEPS

Perhaps one reason for George M. Cohan's quitting his Presidential role in "I'd Rather Be Right" was that he was tired after a long run of that popular music show. Another might have been the debut of his daughter, Mary, as a songstress in New York.

For a while it looked as if the comely heiress to the Cohan tradition would avoid the limelight.

AIRPLANE MADE IN DIXON ABOUT 1868 UNTESTED

Telegraph Files of 1888 Tell of Discovery in Excavation

An indication that a resident of Dixon planned and constructed a model flying machine about 75 years ago, has been found in the files of The Telegraph. In an issue of Saturday evening, March 17, 1888, reference is made to the flying machine which was discovered in excavating for the basement of the former Van Epps building on First street and Galena avenue, the site of the present Dixon National bank building.

The 1888 issue indicates that more than 20 years prior to that time, a shoe dealer by the name of Sprague, fashioned a flying machine and built a model in the basement of his place of business. When completed, the model, he found was too big to be moved from the basement, and there it remained without having been given a trial, to be discovered when excavation for a modern building block was started in 1888. The article is as follows:

"In excavating the cellar for the new brick block, on corner of First and Galena streets, an archeological discovery, (if the early history of this city may be so considered) very clearly indicates that the first settlers of Dixon had some sort of notions of flying through the air as the birds fly. Many citizens of Dixon presume to be able to fly in the future but of late years none have attempted etherial trips while residents are here below with their shoes on. In excavating in the ruins of the basement formerly occupied as a place of business by our late fellow citizen, Oliver Wagner, there was found the skeleton of a flying machine. We do not think that Mr. Wagner had any connection whatever with any sort of flying ideas and therefore the machine did not belong to him. However, a score and a half more years since a shoe merchant of this city, named Sprague, made or attempted to make, a flying machine and oldest inhabitants remember that it was a joke often repeated that Sprague had constructed a flying machine in a cellar and made it so very large that it never could be removed from the shop. The joke and the flying machine were both long since forgotten until recalled by this evidence of the folly of man's attempt to fly in the face of vain efforts to fly, were discovered in the shape of wires, springs and steel bands, that lay rusting in the ruins of the old cellar."

She sang and danced, all right, but seemed slow about making a career out of these inherited attributes.

But the lure has proved too strong. She has decided not to sing merely at home and has accepted a job in a night club.

VERY MAD HATTERS

Okay, Men, gang up. I believe I have found the culprit (s) responsible for the current daffydill vogue in ladies' millinery. Don't all charge up at once, take them one at a time. For, to all appearances, the guilty party (ies) I have in mind goes (go) by the names of John-Frederics, Inc.

Actually, John - Frederics is plural for two fellows named John Harburger and Fred Hirst, mad hatters to the Madison Avenue elite.

Now I have only hearsay evidence at hand, but enough for finger-pointing. They are the boys who promoted the trend of ladies hats toward such shapes as the Capitol dome, anchovy canapes, steamboat whistles, Florida palms, soup bowls, inverted demi-tasse cups, telegraph poles and model T Fords. And the wonder is that they don't seem to mind anybody's knowing it.

BIRTH OF A STYLE

It seems that it all started inadvertently. The two-ply Frederics were drawn into it—so maybe, men, we ought to toss in a plea for mercy on the grounds that it was unpremeditated nonsense.

It seems that it all started to happen when a customers in their Madison Avenue shop got sore because her hat wasn't ready.

"Wait a minute," said one of the Frederics. He seized a handful of cloth remnants, a pair of scissors, cut out several pieces, sewed them together and came back with the disrag in 15 minutes.

The price was terrific and the customer was delighted. So you can hardly blame the boys if you discerned the germ of a legitimate racket.

They've gone places from there, inventing hundreds of lurid or cockeyed skimmers for the distaff side of the Upper Clawuses.

Former Jap Ambassador To U. S. Dead

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Hiroshi Saito, former Japanese ambassador to the United States, died unexpectedly yesterday of a respiratory ailment. He was 51 years old.

Saito retired last fall and subsequently declined an offer to become Japan's foreign minister. He gave his failing health as the reason.

Secretary of State Hull said in a statement that the former ambassador had worked incessantly for five years "with understanding and sympathy for friendly relations between his native land and this country."

Saito, whose ashes will be taken back to Japan by his widow, was the youngest Japanese diplomat ever sent here as Ambassador. He came here first in 1911 as an attaché and in the next seven years rose to the position of third secretary. Transferred to London, he subsequently returned to the United States as consul at Seattle, Wash.

After coming here again in 1932, as charge d'affaires, Saito was named Japanese ambassador to the Netherlands. A year later he was assigned to represent his

Resume Cargill Grain Company Hearing Today

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Attorneys appeared before a referee of the Commodity Exchange Commission today for a resumption of the hearing in which Cargill, Inc., Minneapolis grain firm, alleged the Chicago Board of Trade violated the commodity exchange act in grain futures trading.

The hearing began last November in Washington. The case involved trading in corn and wheat futures in 1936 and during the corn "squeeze" of 1937. It brought charges and counter-charges between Cargill, the Board of Trade and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace.

Cargill alleged the board aided in manipulating futures prices downward by ordering Cargill to liquidate part of its "long" position in September corn in 1937, and in corn and wheat in December.

Saito delighted in playing golf, poker and demonstrating his knowledge of American slang. Probably his most trying days were those which followed the bombing of the American gunboat Panay. Without awaiting instructions from Tokyo, he apologized in a nation-wide broadcast for the incident.

Shawneetown Is Hopeful of Fame As Oil Producer

Shawneetown, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—This city's hopes of becoming known as an oil center rather than the flood "capital" of "Egypt" soared today when W. M. Coats disclosed the Green No. 1 wildcat near Junction core saturation in three oil producing horizons. Casing has been set to 2600 feet to test the McClosky line.

Coats said about 32 feet of saturated McClosky had been cored in three sections between 2600 and 2668 feet. A Schlumberger survey showed one section of seven feet, one of 15, and another of eight, he said. In addition, he said, there was 36 feet of saturation between 1750 and 1800 feet in the Waltersburg, not now productive in Illinois, but the drilling was continued "because we wanted to test the McClosky."

The third formation was the Rosiclare in which 11 feet of sand was topped at 2535 feet. Coats said the Schlumberger showed there might be water in this formation but an acid test showed their was none.

Coats, associated with Bert Fields in the test, which has given Gallatin county one of the biggest leasing campaigns in Illinois, although 30 miles from production, said one new location had been made a mile north of the Green test and three other locations would be announced this week. The Green test is on the Dr. E. A. Green farm in Gold Hill township, just north of Junction.

ber, 1936.

At previous sessions, Board of Trade counsel asserted Cargill obtained a potential "corner" in September, 1937, corn with the intention of driving the price from $1.16 to $1.40 a bushel at a time when farmers' supplies were low.

The board expelled the Cargill Grain Company of Illinois and three of its officers last March, alleging the company, a Cargill subsidiary now dissolved, manipulated corn prices.

Wallace also charged the Cargill firm violated the commodity exchange act.

Franco Given—

"I understand the French government also will be announcing their decision on this question today."

"His Majesty's government have noted with satisfaction the public statements of General Franco concerning the determination of himself and his government to secure the traditional independence of Spain and to take proceedings only in cases of those against whom criminal charges are laid."

In response to a question by Laborite Clement R. Attlee, opposition leader, he said the government would order a debate in Common tomorrow on its decision.

When the laborite persisted in further questions about the prospective debate, Chamberlain snapped:

"I am not going to be cross-examined about particular hours and moments without having notice."

Suggests Impeachment
Gallagher then shouted: "You should be impeached."

Then ensued a heated exchange between Attlee and Chamberlain. Attlee said:

"In the future when I have a question on foreign affairs I shall have to arrange for the question to be put in another place where I am sure I shall get a proper answer."

This retort brought cheers from the opposition and cries of "order!" from government supporters.

Some thought Attlee meant he would put his questions to the Rome-Berlin axis, while others thought he meant to the foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, who sits in the House of Lords and is noted for his imperturbable courtesy.

The laborites cheered Attlee when he accused Chamberlain of violating a pledge to inform Commons as soon as the government had decided to recognize General Franco. Attlee charged that France had been informed secretly first.

Chamberlain Replies

To this Chamberlain replied: "I may tell Mr. Attlee that the British government decided to leave in the hands of the foreign secretary and myself the final decision as to the recognition of Gen. Franco, and the final decision was taken over the week-end."

Attlee shot back: "Was it a mistake that it was stated in the press and in a statement alleged to have been made by the French Prime Minister that he had been in consultation with the British Prime Minister and the decision had been taken in time for the French Prime Minister to make a statement on Friday in the French Chamber of Deputies?"

(During debate Friday in the French Chamber Premier Edouard Daladier announced France would recognize Franco and hinted that Britain also would do so.)

Chamberlain replied: "I cannot be cross-examined about particular hours and moments as to when these decisions were taken without having notice of the question and an opportunity to be quite certain that I am giving accurate answers."

Attlee's Answer

To this Attlee answered: "The issue is bigger than that. The prime minister is not entitled to mislead this house."

"Is the prime minister prepared," asked Attlee, "to say when this decision was made? Has not this house the right to be told of this decision before it is told to the parliament of another country?"

Chamberlain answered: "I do not think I have misled the house in any way. The statement I made at the time was perfectly accurate."

He referred to his statement to the house last Thursday that recognition of Franco still was under consideration.

FRENCH CABINET VOTES

Paris, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The French cabinet today voted unanimously for recognition of the nationalist rule of Generalissimo Francisco Franco as the legal government of Spain.

The French action followed swiftly on the heels of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement to the House of Commons in London that Britain had accorded the Franco regime unconditional recognition as Spain's sovereign government.

Both actions, taken in concert, had been foreshadowed since Friday when Premier Daladier had reported to the Chamber of Deputies for recognition of the Spanish nationalists.

Feel End Is Near

Even Spanish republican circles here acknowledged that the Spanish civil war was virtually at an end, the decisions of Britain and France having pulled the last prop from under the tottering republican regime of Premier Juan Negrin.

A French ambassador to Burgos, Franco's capital, will be named this week. Senator Leon Berard, French emissary to Burgos, has been offered the post but has declined it. It is expected to go to a career diplomat.

President Albert Lebrun presided at the cabinet meeting in Elysee palace. A communiqué after the meeting adjourned said Daladier had reported on negotiations at Burgos between Berard and

Says State Has Power to Control Use of Streets

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., told the Supreme Court today that "the state has the absolute power to control the use of streets and public places for the benefit of the public at large."

Hague has appealed from a lower court decision that he and his police had denied unconditionally to the CIO the right of free assembly. His contention was contained in a brief filed in connection with oral arguments.

Assailing a decision of the third Circuit Court at Philadelphia, which on January 26 enjoined Jersey City from prohibiting CIO meetings, the Hague brief asserted:

"Under the law of New Jersey no one has the right to hold a public meeting in the streets or public places of a municipality without the consent of the local authority. It having been held by this court that such a law does not conflict with the Federal constitution, the Jersey City ordinance which restricts the right to speak in such places under certain conditions is necessary valid. The ordinance has been legally enforced in this state."

General Count Francisco Gomez Jordana, nationalist foreign minister.

"He also explained accords which were reached in conclusion of negotiations," the Communiqué said.

The texts of the accords were expected to be made public tonight.

U. S. EMBASSY CLOSED

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The state department announced today the closing of the American provisional embassy to Spain at Perpignan, France, on the Spanish border.

This was a result of the collapse of the loyalist government in Catalonia.

Following the flight of the loyalist government from Barcelona into France, Walter C. Thurston, American chargé d'affaires at Barcelona, established the embassy office at Perpignan. Ambassador Claude G. Bowers has been at St. Jean de Luz, France, since shortly after the outbreak of the Spanish civil war, and the Perpignan office will be merged with offices there.

SEVERAL OF LEE CITIZENS HAVE ANSWERED PLEA

Tell of Residence in the County For Over Half Century

The Telegraph's appeal, published Saturday, for names and data on living pioneers of Lee county brought the following data of several of the residents of the community who have seen developments in the community for over or nearly 80 years:

Mrs. Carrie B. Pumphrey
Mrs. Carrie B. Pumphrey, 406 Third street, was born in a log cabin at Palantine Grove, near what is now Sublette, Dec. 17, 1843. Her father settled on the estate in 1836 and opened a store in 1839, which he lost when an epidemic of sickness swept the territory. He later opened a tavern near his home which was known as the "Lone Star" tavern and which was the half way house on the Peru-Grand Detour stage line. Mrs. Pumphrey, who has been a resident of Lee county all her life, was at one time a telegraph operator at Ashton.

George W. Buckaloo
George W. Buckaloo, 615 North Hennepin avenue, was born May 28, 1849 on a farm in the Bend, which was purchased by his parents, Joseph and Eliza (Kerr) Buckaloo in 1839 when they came west from Bloomsburg, Penna. The farm was operated by members of the family until 1901 when it was sold to Lewis Beatty and is now occupied by the Leon Brooks family. "Uncle George" as he is generally called by his friends, has lived near and in Dixon all his life.

Edgar A. Patrick
Edgar A. Patrick, 314 Peoria avenue, known throughout the country for his ability in art and decorating, was born in a house near the present location of Buck's book store, 107 Galena avenue, April 7, 1850, the son of Shepherd Goodwin and Phoebe Shaw Patrick. His father was one of the state's most prominent attorneys and was an officer in the Civil War, enlisting twice. His mother was a sister of the late Benjamin F. Shaw, publisher and editor of the Telegraph and for years a leading Republican in Illinois. The Dixon artist's work is still extant in many churches, theaters and homes throughout the nation. He was a child in Dixon when an epidemic of cholera killed residents of this community by the score.

Patrick Duffy
Patrick Duffy, 907 Third street, a native of Ireland, was brought to Lee county in his childhood by his parents, and has been a resident of the county 88 years. He is known to his intimate friends as the "Mayor of Eldena" and was injured in the fire and explosion which destroyed the Underwood mills in this city many years ago.

Other Pioneers
Among other "old timers" are Alex Turner, born in Dixon Nov. 6, 1864, and a present employee of the Evening Telegraph, with which he started to work in 1882. Edwin E. Smith, former city clerk and supervisor, now in his

INDICTMENT OF FOUR DEMOCRATS IN PENNA. ASKED

Members of Former Governor Earle's Cabinet Accused

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Indictments of four members of former Governor George H. Earle's cabinet and other affiliated with his Democratic administration was recommended today by a special grand jury which investigated charges of conspiracy to defraud the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Cabinet members named in the presentment on charges of fraud and payroll padding in the highway department, "blackmail" of state employees for political contributions, and misuse of surety bonds on state construction contracts were:

David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman and former secretary of the commonwealth, previously indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the commonwealth, and violation of the election laws.

Ralph M. Bashore, secretary of the Democratic state committee and former secretary of labor and industry.

Roy E. Brownmiller, former secretary of highways.

The late Warren Van Dyke, secretary of highways before Brownmiller.

No Findings on Earle

The grand jury's report said "although we are not prepared to make any specific findings regarding the conduct of George H. Earle" in permitting the alleged condition, "we expressly direct attention thereto in the hope that care will be exercised by future chief executives and that every precaution will be taken to prevent misuse of state funds."

The charges were made during the spring primary campaign last year. Republicans won the November election and took over the state administration in January. The presentment said the grand jury believed Earle should have known of conditions investigated "had he properly supervised the administration of the government of the commonwealth."

Eleven others, some formerly connected with the administration and some officers of the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) Democratic committee, were named in the presentment.

The special grand jury could not indict today because its power to do so expired January 16. It indicted Lawrence in a previous report before that date. Investigations started 13 weeks ago.

Judge Paul N. Schaeffer directed District Attorney Carl B. Shelley to draw bills of indictment based on the presentment and submit them to the next regular grand jury, in March.

94th year, who came to Dixon in 1874.

Detroit, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Philip Murray, vice president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said today that "93 per cent of the entire dues-paying membership of the U. A. W. A." is aligned with the C. I. O.-supported international executive board.

He said the forces of Homer Martin, the elected president, are "completely demoralized."

Those conclusions, he said, are the result of an "exhaustive investigation" by the C. I. O. in all automobile and automobile parts centers in the country.

Murray, who came to Detroit to deliver his first speech in the current U. A. W. A. controversy, said in an interview that all locals which send delegates to the special convention called by Martin for next Saturday would be suspended automatically from membership in the U. A. W. A. and from affiliation with the C. I. O. C. I. O. officials previously made the same threat.

Murray will deliver his speech over radio stations here and in Cleveland tonight.

R. J. Thomas, president of the C. I. O.-backed U. A. W. A. faction, said today he would ask Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea to recommend warrants charging members of the Martin faction with forgery and inciting to riot.

Thomas said five men who attempted Sunday to get into a meeting of the Dodge U. A. W. A. local were non-union hirelings paid to boost Martin policies and "raise a fuss."

Five locals, Thomas said, had turned away from meetings men with false credentials.

"It is the possession of forged dues receipts which makes this thing serious," Thomas said.

Belvidere Couple Married 72 Years

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. John N. Penwell, believed to be the oldest married couple in northern Illinois, celebrated their seventy-second wedding anniversary at their home here today. He is nearing his 94th birthday anniversary and she is 90.

Both are lifelong residents of this locality and natives of Boone county. Children of early day pioneers, they knew the county well in the days when the farms were plowed with ox teams and the sight of Indians was familiar. The nearest grist mill was at Dixon, sixty-five miles from here, and much of the wheat and corn they used was ground on the farm in a coffee mill.

Both are in good health and Mr. Penwell keeps up repairs on a number of homes he owns here. They have one son, Charles, of this city.

VOTE TOMORROW

Tomorrow's primary election may be more important than you think. If you are interested in helping select the best kind of officials you will make it a point to get to the polls. The vote each candidate receives at tomorrow's election is likely to have a bearing on the final results in the run-off election in April.

And don't stay away from the polls just because the man or men you are most interested in appear to have easy sailing without your help. If enough of any popular candidate's friends should do that he would be defeated.

Anyway, you should value your right of franchise enough to exercise it. Vote tomorrow.

EPIDEMIC OF BAD TASTE

It was bad taste for 20,000 members of the Nazi band to hold a meeting in New York for the purpose of aping the European Nazis. It was bad taste for 100,000 anti-Nazis to attempt to storm the meeting. It was bad taste for Dorothy Thompson, the American columnist, to interrupt the meeting with her laughter. The whole disgraceful affair was an epidemic of bad taste in a city so crowded with 'isms and anti-'isms that the dignity of American citizenship was overlooked. One would think that New York City had suddenly become populated with Europeans.

Even though the Nazi members had the right to assemble peaceably, good taste should have dictated no meeting likely to precipitate a riot; and if the anti-Nazis are so in favor of tolerance and what not, they should have shown their displeasure by remaining away instead of by trying to suppress the gathering.

Europe is the place for Nazis, and Europe is the place to go to fight them.

'APPEASEMENT' THE WRONG WORD

Application of President Roosevelt's domestic policies to his international tactics would place him solidly in line with the "have nots," as represented by Germany, Italy and Spain, and against the "haves," as represented by France, Britain and Russia.

Is it not true that Mr. Roosevelt, in his activities in the United States, has always stood for the poor, downtrodden underdogs? He sees the farmers unable to obtain a fair price for their products, and draws upon the treasury to help them make ends meet. He sees people languishing in slums, and seeks to destroy those blighted areas and transport the inhabitants to better places. He sees unemployment and creates jobs for the jobless by means of public works. He assists labor in its efforts to obtain higher wages or other advantages, even to the extent of countenancing "aggression"—seizure of property in sit-down strikes.

In his domestic policies he has ranged himself unfalteringly in favor of the poor, and against everybody else. A third of our people, he estimates are poorly fed, badly clothed and inadequately housed. He proposes to do something about it. He has been proposing to do something about it for six years.

Now we submit that if there is any government on earth that is rich in territories and resources to the point of bursting, it is Great Britain. What American go-get-it-iveness could do with an empire like that would be amazing. And what are the British doing with it? One would think that every able-bodied man on the tight little isle would be rolling in gold and jewels. But if it were not for Britain's energetic rearmament program, undertaken to hold that plethora of rich lands, the tight little isle would be plagued still with the drole problem and the means test.

Another rich country is France. Not so bloated as Britain, but still well to do.

The Russians have mines they have not developed, water power they don't know how to use, lands they can't farm to advantage and factories they don't know how to operate, all contained in the world's largest political unit.

In the conflict between these bloated empires and the three totalitarian states which lack resources, whose side does Roosevelt, the friend of the poor, take?

He sides with the rich.

Perhaps Mr. Chamberlain erred in calling his policy one of "appeasement" during the Munich crisis. It is one of the habits of Britain statesmen to call something by a sugar-coated name that hides the purpose.

If Mr. Chamberlain had told Roosevelt privately:

"I propose to place within reach of the dictators enough resources to make their people prosperous, so they may eat, grow fat and quit hating the democracies. After they have regained some trade and better food, they will throw Hitler and Mussolini to the dogs. By that policy we will avoid a frightful and costly war. Communism will change gradually to a sensible form of government by the people; sanity will be restored and Europe could hum with the arts of peace?" If Mr. Chamberlain had said that, Mr. Roosevelt might feel differently.

"Appeasement." That was an unfortunate word.

MONKEY BUSINESS STILL UNLAWFUL

Tennessee's monkey law remains on the books. Most of us had forgotten the famous monkey trial at Dayton, Tenn., where Schoolmaster Scopes was before the bar for teaching that man evolved from a lower form of life. The incident was recalled by the shelving of a bill to repeal the anti-evolution law.

In presenting the measure, Representative J. E. Deford said: "We've got enough people down in my county who believe in and practice witchcraft; but that is their business. I want to allow scientific men the same privilege."

One would suppose that if it is legal to practice witchcraft in Tennessee, one should be permitted to teach evolution, but after all, that is Tennessee's business.

Most of us never would have heard of the Scopes trial in Dayton if Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer, had not galloped to Dayton to defend Scopes, and if William Jennings Bryan, fundamentalist, had not hastened there to lock horns with the Chicago agnostic lawyer. The country cared little about the guilt or innocence of Schoolmaster Scopes, but was edified by the battle of the Titans. Scopes was lost sight of in the conflict about whether Joshua stopped the sun in its mad course about the skies, and whether Mr. Darrow's very remote ancestors were ringtailed monkeys or just plain apes.

Mr. Darrow snapped his galluses nonchalantly after his defeat by the force of fundamentalism, and went back to Chicago to continue his law practice. Mr. Bryan went directly from Dayton to his eternal reward.

The Characters.
Peter Mallone: Adventurous correspondent for the London News.
Petronella: His loyal sister.
James: Petrel's fiancé.

Yesterday, Petrel and James announce their engagement, but a fortune teller says that Petrel will soon go to another lover in a troubled country.

Chapter 35 The Gipsy's Prophecy

No sooner had Peter gone to Spain, than the full storm broke, the revolt started. Rebel ships from the North African colony landed their foreign legionnaires in Algiers, and seized the province of Huéla. Soon the rebels held control of Spanish Morocco, the Canaries, the Balearic Islands, most of southwest Spain, and Navarre, the large area north of Madrid.

In Madrid itself, Petrel read there were many with insurgent sympathies, so that lorry loads of Militiamen, bristling with arms, patrolled the streets. Private, commanded cars, spilling Militiamen from steps and wings, dashed up and down Calle Acaia, searched houses suspected of harboring Fascists, and fired at those appearing in their windows, if the search had proved unsuccessful. Orders were broadcast, dismissing officers of the army from lieutenant's upward.

Martin Rowdon heard the rattle of Militia machine guns, attacking the Montana Barracks, above the heavily censored report which Peter's voice read to him, from the press room. She read Peter's dispatches. Once he managed to fly over to the French side of the frontier, where the beaches were still filled with holidaymakers, who sat "watching the war."

He sent photographs of his capture, which he had obtained in France, of the rebel troops under General Davila, attacking Irun. They showed peasants in blue overalls, slung rifles, and red berets; Carlists in khaki, with a skull and crossbones on their Brown belts; women, who had joined in the rebellion, and were armed, like men. Soon after Peter made this expedition, they learned that his plane had been commandeered by the Government forces.

Petronella met some of the refugees, among them, her friends the Lorillos from Madrid. They arrived at Victoria Station with the equivalent of a few pounds, in a packet, a paper bundle of clothes, and two tiny suitcases. This was all they had been able to save from the beautiful villa which she remembered as their home. She remembered that they had a son.

"Where is 'Emilio'?"
"We do not know, Miss Malone. He is fighting. It was his duty," the mother answered. She accepted Petronella's invitation to stay at the cottage, with a storm of grateful weeping. Peter had managed to send a letter by these friends. It had escaped the censor. In it he said: "Tony has turned up, so we're both staying at the 'Bristol,' and see a good deal of each other. It is lucky for me, and I used to laugh at you; then I knew you attracted me. But it didn't seem serious. We've grown into each other lives, just as Petrel has grown out of me. We can't help it. You don't hate me," she sobbed. She was warm, small, passionate.

"I think I love you."
"But you love Petrel."
"Differently," he said miserably. "It is you I want like this, close to me. How the devil am I to tell her? I must, but when I do—she'll go to Peter, in that hell, Tamara. I shall be responsible for cutting," her adrift again. We must wait."

"Yes, I don't think she'll notice."
When Petrel joined them they felt guilty, as conspirators. But she seemed scarcely to see them. She told them her news.

much to be content with it. I should think you would be very fed up with Peter."

Trembling
He looked at her. He flushed. Even as he gave his loyal answer, he knew that he was blustering and lying.

"Tamara, you're uncivilized." "Of course! Because I speak the truth. I do not pretend."

"I'm anxious for Peter's safety, too."

"Why should you be? He enjoys danger. One cannot spend life wearing oneself out about such people." In his heart, he agreed with her. She was right about Petrel, too. It was not enough, for any normal man, Petrel was only half here, he told himself.

Her graceful mind and body moved in a halfhearted, dutiful, sweetly, Tamara cut in, completing his thought.

"I think her spirit is a long way away, James. The gipsy told her that, didn't she? She told me things, too. I was pretending only, when I joked about the desk."

Her eyes met his, in challenge. He hardly dared to ask his question. But he must know. "What did she say?"

Tamara looked startled and obstinate.

"No, I won't tell you."

"You must," He caught at her, roughly.

"No, no!" Before he realized the unsuitability of this scene, Tamara had jerked her arm free, and was running up the stairs, with him pounding after her. He caught her at the top of the landing. He trembled, to find her trembling in his hand. She was like a gazelle, with her soft, frightened eyes and the little body. Or a warm, soft bird that he had rescued from beating against an imprisoning window pane. Feeling her pulsating in his hands, gave him a thrill of life and power, and sudden tender, baring for her. Now you know. He did not let her go. She was alive! Petrel was asleep.

"Now, will you tell me, Tamara? Don't you realize that I have a right to know?"

She looked up at him, anxiously. "Things are not as they have been, you and Petrel, are they? You are both trying hard, but—"

"Leave Petrel out of it." He was suddenly angry with her. His hands slipped to her wrists. If she was trying to put him against Petrel, Tamara's answer came through angry, defiant tears. He was hurting her.

"How can I, when the gipsy told me that I would live in that house you are building for her, and use the things we have been buying for her. Now you know!" Tamara flung away from him, faced him. "That is what she told me, and I love you, and I want it to be true. Now tell me what you think of me, that you hate me, that you love Petrel!"

"The next moment he pulled her into his arms."

"Tamara, my dear, don't cry. This is awful!"

"It had to happen, I suppose. I used to laugh at you; then I knew you attracted me. But it didn't seem serious. We've grown into each other lives, just as Petrel has grown out of me. We can't help it. You don't hate me," she sobbed. She was warm, small, passionate.

Some Items Behind the News in National Capital Today

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Staff Writer
Washington—The heat is on to produce an 80-billion-dollar national income.

The New Deal is openly courting private business in the hope that this policy will encourage capital to go to work and yield that income.

The national annual income at the moment is estimated by President Roosevelt to be hovering around $60,000,000,000. In 1929 it was $1, in 1932 it was down to 40, and in 1937 up to 70.

An 80-billion-dollar income would solve many problems for the New Deal and the nation. It would yield enough taxes at the present rates to balance the budget. It would automatically employ much of the nation's idle private money, producing new jobs and cutting the unemployed to a minimum. It would also demonstrate to the world that democracy works in the world's most powerful nation without the much touted "efficiency" methods of dictatorship.

Harry Hopkins finds himself in the role of peacemaker and pacesetter because his department of commerce is the government's official meeting ground with business, and because he is generally accepted as closest of all New Dealers to President Roosevelt.

Two Schools to Consider

Hopkins recognizes two schools of thought on the subject of national income. The "confidence school" believes the government should put itself on record as promising NOT to harass business with more taxes and onerous regulation. Men in this school argue that confidence will coax money out of hiding and eventually produce an 80-billion income.

The "hardboiled school" on the other hand tells you investment money won't come out of hiding until the national income reaches the 80-billion mark, no matter how much confidence business receives from government. They insist that the income must be jacked up to the maximum by hook or crook before confidence can be restored.

Without disclosing his mind on the two schools, Hopkins has given his first attention to the confidence school.

For that reason, you may expect him to:

1. Co-operate with congress on incentive taxation—the kind of taxes that leave business with the incentive to make profits, instead of feeling that government takes all the profits.

2. Promote labor peace between AFL's Bill Green and CIO's John Lewis, and to explore the theory of annual wages for workers as a means of bringing them steadier and higher-income, and at the same time afford business a cheaper per unit cost of operation.

3. Favor writing a definite federal power policy, telling the great electric power industry that it can plan for the future with NO fear of further government invasion.

4. Extend a friendly hand to big business as such, so long as there is NO attempt to crush a weaker independent, or interfere with past New Deal reforms.

5. Take great interest in Congress' so-called monopoly investigation, NOT with a view to cracking down on bigness as such, but rather as the possible birthplace of a future national business policy. Such a policy might afford a way to tell business in advance what it can or cannot do. Today, business doesn't know about violating the anti-trust laws until somebody complains.

Others Interested

Other departments than Hopkins are interested in the peace drive. The whole push takes its keynotes from the president's annual address to congress, where he suggested the New Deal's social reforms were completed, and the time had come for invigorating recovery.

But the one common denominator on the business front is Hopkins, because his department is naturally interested in all the elements of a business upswing—labor, industry, transportation, electric power, and so on.

The main difficulty of his position at the moment is the danger that other cabinet members and shining lights might become suspicious that Harry Hopkins is tending to everybody's business, or, worse, that left wingers will suspect that he has deserted their cause, and gone over to the conservative camp.

The next hurdle might be the suspicions of business men themselves. Time will tell the story.

WOMAN INVENTS

TRAIN SLEEPING AID
Los Angeles (AP)—In her 66 years, Mrs. Sarah L. Gossard has invented things ranging from a corset to a dirigible. The dirigible is still in the blueprint stage, but the front-lace corsets she designed 25 years ago were the opening door to a fortune.

Her inventions include a portable shower bath, a permanent wave machine and a rubber figure for the study of anatomy in medical schools. One of her latest devices is a sleeping bag for passengers who must spend the night in a railroad day coach. It contains a cushion which bridges the gap between the seats.

Daily Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The kidney is one of the most important organs in the human body. From time to time experts endeavor to list the organs of the body as to their relative importance. Many of them put the brain, the heart, the lungs, or the liver first. No such list, however, could exclude the kidneys, because in their absence, death promptly ensues.

Fortunate the human being has two kidneys—one of which is quite sufficient to carry on the work of the body if the other happens to be completely incapacitated. That is also the case with the lungs. The human being may continue to survive with even only a portion of one of the kidneys functioning fully.

Pyelitis is the name given to infection of the kidney. In most instances the germs are brought from points elsewhere in the body as, for example, from infected tonsils or from an infected digestive tract. In other instances, the kidney may become infected by material coming to it from the lymphatic route, or by material carried upward from the bladder through the tubes which pass from the kidney to the bladder, known as the ureters. In most instances infections of the kidney are caused by a germ known as the colon bacillus, an organism related to the typhoid and paratyphoid group of bacteria.

An infection in the kidney, as an infection elsewhere in the body, sets up fever, intoxication by the products of the fever and of the germs, and the associated symptoms of nausea and vomiting. There may also be pain in the abdomen and if the infection is very severe, the kind of rigidity that is associated with an infection of the appendix.

In many instances, however, the infection of the kidney takes place slowly and becomes chronic. These are the cases usually in which the infection has come upward from the bladder, although occasionally if the germ coming by way of the blood is not a virulent one, the manifestations may be of the chronic type.

A person with a long-standing infection of the kidney shows the results by damage to the blood, loss of appetite, headache, loss of weight, and general illness. If the infection is such that the kidneys are prevented from performing their function of excreting waste material from the body, the person infected may die with the poisoning of such products, known as uremia.

Fortunately, modern scientific medicine has developed several methods of treating these infections. Opportunity for control today is far better than it was even 10 years ago.

Modern medicine has developed ways of increasing the flow of material through and from the kidney. Methods have been developed for examination of the kidney directly to determine the extent of the damage. There are functional tests which determine the capacity not only of both kidneys but of each kidney at any given time. Diets have been developed to aid in the control of infection within the kidney by modifying the medium in which the germs live and grow. Moreover, two new drugs, known as mandelic acid and sulfanilamide, have been shown to have splendid virtues in attacking such infections.

THE DEVOTIONAL LIFE

O Lord Jesus Christ, who didst say to thy disciples, Come ye apart and rest awhile; grant us ye to seek thee whom our souls desire to love that we may both find and be found of thee.

The wider meaning of the "devotional life" is the devoted life, the life that is completely given to the service of God. But it usually signifies the means by which we can develop the devoted life,

the process by which we can feed and stimulate that life the springs from which we can refresh ourself-consecration to God.

When we consider the wider meaning we ought to remember that anyone can be "devoted" of devout who is capable of loyalty and persistence as a disciple of Christ. It is not the mark of some peculiar temperament. So devoted ness or devoutness is not a quality meant for you and me.

And the same is true of pursuing the means by which we can cultivate the devoted life. It does not mean following a special set of methods suited only to the saint or the monk. We need it even more than they do, and in our own way we are quite as free to practice it. How to practice it with growing satisfaction is what we can learn from keeping Lent.

A missionary Bishop sends a just and helpful criticism: "You give many prayers but very few thanksgivings."

Nearly 200 Guests Attend Ortgiesen-Trei Wedding at Christian Church, Sunday

A gold chain, worn by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Fredricka (Drsheler) Joynt on her own wedding day in 1882, was the "something old" with Miss Avis Ella Marie Ortgiesen's bridal ensemble, when she pledged marriage vows with Martin O. Trei, Sunday afternoon at the first Christian church. About 200 guests from Chicago, Dixon, Forreston and Harmon witnessed the ceremony, read at 2 o'clock by the Rev. James A. Barnett.

Ferns and white tapers decorated the altar. Organ selections by Clinton Fahrney included "The Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin." He also accompanied Mrs. Myrtle George, who sang two selections, "Love's Appeal" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

The bride, who is the only daughter of Mrs. Mabel Ortgiesen of 829 North Dixon avenue, was given in marriage by her paternal grandfather, John B. Ortgiesen. Her gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a flaring, floor-length skirt, and long, fitted sleeves, had a small, tailored collar and was trimmed with pearl beading and Irish lace. A beaded headband and silver satin sandals completed her attire, and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses with valley lilies.

Miss Georgia Ortgiesen was her cousin's maid of honor. She chose a hoop-skirt gown of royal blue taffeta with blue sandals, and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses. Her flowers were Talisman roses.

Gene Trei came from Cogswell, N. D., to serve his brother as best man. Ushers were John Ortgiesen, the bride's brother, and Adon Albright of Polo, her cousin.

After the ceremony, there was a reception in the church parlors. The three-tiered wedding cake, iced in pink and white, was served with frappe. Mrs. Winifred Wells and Miss Golda Cunningham were in charge of the serving, assisted by Miss Phyllis Wells, Miss Lillian Rhodes, Miss Lenore Myers, and Mrs. Clyde Taylor, who poured.

Later, Mr. Trei and his bride left on a week's wedding trip by motor. For traveling, the bride wore a two-piece suit of black pin-stripe wool with teal accessories.

After March 6, the couple will be at home with the bride's mother on North Dixon avenue.

Mrs. Trei is a graduate of Dixon high school with the class of 1937. The bridegroom, who is the eldest son of Mrs. Helen Trei of Cogswell, N. D., was graduated from the Aberdeen, S. D. high school in 1934, and is employed by the Northern Illinois Utilities company.

Dixon Woman's Club Hears Musical Program, Saturday

Dixon Woman's club members were applauding several of their own talented ones Saturday afternoon at an all-music program presented in the Guild room at St. Luke's Episcopal church. Seventy-nine members attended the musicale, arranged by Mrs. B. J. Frazer and her music and radio committee.

Demonstrating a smooth merging of tone qualities and a bright clarity with which the group's component parts answered each other, members of the Woman's club chorus opened the program, and their pleasing performance made their listeners wish the singers might be heard more often. Fifteen women, representing a wide variety of business and professional careers, (from homemaking to music teaching), compose the personnel, and all, in spite of many other demands on their time, are very faithful about attending rehearsals.

The chorus sang three songs, "Message of the Bells" (Rachmaninoff-Lester), in which Mrs. Howard Byers took the soprano obbligato; "American Lullaby," an ultra-modern bit about "daddy" has gone to his stock broker's office and mother has gone to her weekly bridge party," composed by Gladys Rich; and "The Echo Song" by Cuthbert Harris, in which deft and effective attention was given the pianissimo passages. The contralto voice of Mrs. Myrtle George was heard in the lullaby number.

Mrs. I. B. Potter directed the chorus, which formerly sang under the direction of Mrs. W. C. Kleaveland, now of Galesburg. Mrs. Howard M. Edwards is the group's able accompanist.

A paper, written by Mrs. Ralph Chesley and read by Mrs. R. H. Hartridge, told interesting incidents in the lives of four outstanding composers — Tschaiakowsky, Beethoven, Grieg, and Schumann. Following the outlines, an illustration of one or two of the best known compositions of each was given. Beethoven was represented on the program by the first movement of his "Moonlight Sonata," which was given an admirable interpretation by the youngest musician on the program, Miss Marie Haefliger, a Dixon school girl. The only violinist appearing, Mrs. Orville Westgor, displayed a skillfully welded bow and a nimble left hand in a Tschaiakowsky composition, "None but the Lonely Heart." Mrs. Dwight Chapman, another accomplished musician, was at the piano for the violin solo.

The pleasing soprano voice of Mrs. F. J. Robinson was heard in Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich" (I Love Thee). She was accompanied by Mrs. Richard A. Joslyn, whose pianistic artistry concluded the musicale with two of Schumann's compositions, "Why?" and "Soaring."

Mrs. Lester Street, the club president, conducted the business meeting. Announcement was made that Dr. Herman Pepon of Chicago would be the guest speaker for the next meeting on March 11. His subject is to be: "What Illinois Offers the Nature Lover."

Mrs. D. C. Leake presided at the tea table during the social hour. Snapdragons and sweet peas in fuchsia shades were the center decoration for the candlelit table.

Fur is Important

With a truly feminine silhouette replacing the semi-feminine one which predominated last Easter, and soft clothes rather than severely tailored ones being most important in the spring fashion picture, fur pieces are, quite naturally, again in the spotlight. If you've been saving your pennies for fur, this is the time to invest them in a bit of flattering fluff to wear with your spring suit or dress and coat ensemble.

Labor Board—

other organization, is the choice of the majority of the employees in the proper unit can be determined by proceedings open to the board," Hughes added.

The chief justice also said the board found there was a refusal on Feb. 17, 1937, by Fanteel to bargain collectively.

"These conclusions," the majority opinion said, "are supported by the findings of the board and the latter in this relation have substantial support in the evidence."

Justices Reed and Black dissented in part. Justice Stone concurred in part and Justice Frankfurter did not participate.

Dissenting Opinion

Reed, in a dissenting opinion in which Black concurred, said that "as now construed by the court the employer may discharge any striker, with or without cause, so long as the discharge is not used to interfere with self-organization or collective bargaining."

"Friction easily engendered by labor strife," he continued, "may readily give rise to conduct from nose-thumbing to sabotage, which will give fair occasion for discharge on grounds other than those prohibited by the labor act."

The majority, Reed said, agrees "with the conclusion of the labor board that Fanteel was guilty of unfair labor practices, prior to the strike, in campaigning for a company union, isolating the union president, making through its superintendent, anti-union statements and employing a labor spy."

"It also accepts the board's conclusion," Reed continued, "that there was further pre-strike violation by Fanteel of the labor relations act by refusal to bargain collectively."

"Disapproval of a sit-down," he added, "does not logically compel the acceptance of the theory that an employer has the power to bar his striking employee from the protection of the labor act."

Justice Black concurred in Reed's dissent.

Wabash River Threatens To Halt Oil Drilling

Grayville, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—For the second time in less than a month the Wabash river today threatened to halt operations at the Edith B. Helm test of the Longhorn Oil corporation in South Wabash county, one and a half miles northeast of this city.
Drilling was resumed last Monday after flood waters curtailed operations for nearly three weeks and the test was drilling today at 2700 feet. However, last week's rains and melting snow caused another rise in the river during the week-end and it had reached the test's slush pit.

Mrs Roosevelt Quits Society: Reportedly DAR

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she had resigned from an organization with whose policies she could not agree, but refused to confirm or deny that organization involved was the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Roosevelt was asked whether her resignation had anything to do with a current Washington controversy over the refusal of the D. A. R. to let Constitution Hall here be used for a concert by Marian Anderson, a negro singer.

She declined to indicate whether the resignation she was referring to was connected with the Anderson case. The first lady sent a telegram yesterday to a citizens' committee protesting the singer's inability to get an auditorium here, saying "I regret extremely that Washington is to be deprived of hearing Marian Anderson, who is a great artist."

Mrs. Roosevelt turned aside many questions as "leading." She said that the organization from which she is resigning has national headquarters in Washington and is an organization which she has joined since entering the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt became a D. A. R. after coming to Washington, at the invitation of the organization, which arranged to look up her lineage for her.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that she felt that an organization should give out all information about any member's resignation.

Diggers Recover Two More Bodies From Avalanche in Mountains

Ophir, Utah, Feb. 27.—(AP)—An avalanche which demolished much of the hidden treasure mining camp high in the Ophir mountains gave up two more frozen bodies today.

Recovery of the bodies of Clarence M. Yates, 25, Salt Lake City, and Edward Roberts, 40, Salem, Utah, raised to three the death toll of a thunderous snow slide which struck near the entrance of the lead and silver workings.

The body of Burt F. Harris, 57, Salt Lake City, was found under four feet of snow, ice and debris last night.

Miners and townspeople had shoveled snow throughout the night in the vain hope that Yates and Roberts were still alive.

Senate Warned Of Hostility Of Dictators

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) of the military committee told the senate today that "the hostile attitudes of certain dictator-controlled and imperialistic nations" make necessary an "immediate expansion" of the nation's armed forces.

Starting debate on the administration's $358,000,000 army and air corps expansion bill, Sheppard said his view was based on President Roosevelt's recent messages to congress.

Sheppard told the senate that "we can not draw a line around the sea and land frontiers of the United States and say that this alone is what we will defend. It is not so simple as that. The Panama Canal, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska are vital links in our defense chain, x x x

"There can be no withdrawal from Panama, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska. To permit these strategic areas to fall into the hands of an enemy would jeopardize the security of continental United States itself."

Sheppard said the defense problem was tied up with a belief on the part of the American people "that the western world belongs to the western nations, and that freedom and democracy must be preserved in this hemisphere."

"A violation of the Monroe Doctrine would probably not occur as a sudden, over act," he said, adding:

"It could easily take the form of a step by step movement of a peaceful penetration by foreign nations until definite and powerful minorities would be established, with the result that before military force replaced diplomatic negotiations hostile nations might already have a foothold in areas that would threaten the most important link in our entire system of defense, the Panama Canal."

Abandon Hope for Missing Virginia Teacher

Pennington Gap, Va., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Lee County Sheriff R. F. Giles said today he had given up hope of finding alive Eliza Darnell, a 25-year-old school teacher who disappeared a week ago from her father's home at Keokee, Va.

A party of about 250 men yesterday searched southwest Virginia mountainland about her home without finding trace of her.

Giles said the school teacher might have been slain and her body hidden, or might have been kidnapped. He learned more to the first theory because her father, R. H. Darnell, had received no ransom note.

Darnell, well-to-do merchant and landowner, said he did not report the disappearance until Friday because the family hoped to avoid "notoriety."

Chicago Pair Held Here; on Charge of Taking Car

Alfonse Winterman, 20, and Kermit Wineberger, 24, of Chicago, are being held in the county jail today for Chicago police who were expected to return them to the city this afternoon. The pair were arrested by Officer Louis Scott Sunday morning about 2 o'clock, following an investigation in which Sheriff Gilbert Finch and Deputy L. E. Bates were summoned to Amboy.

A LaSalle sedan, which Chicago police reported was stolen in Chicago Feb. 24, and the property of William Helsing, 6232 Ingleside avenue, a taxi driver, was taken back to Chicago Sunday. The car was reported to have been "borrowed" by the youths who started for San Francisco to attend the world's fair and got to Amboy where the motor was wrecked.

Joliet Prisoner Says He'll Plead Guilty To Murder Allegation

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 27.—State Attorney James P. Burke said today that Terry Welton, 36, who was returned from Sacramento, Calif., Saturday to face a charge of slaying Mrs. Elsie Lichtenwalter in her farm home near Wilton Center, Oct. 26, 1936, had indicated he would plead guilty.

"I want to get this over with," Burke quoted the prisoner. "I want to go into court and plead guilty."

Burke said Welton would be taken to court Wednesday and counsel would be appointed for him. Burke has said he would ask the death penalty.

Rain or Snow, Weatherman Predicts for North Central Areas

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Forecaster H. A. Downs predicted rain or snow tonight and tomorrow in the north central states after cloudy weather today accompanied by a temperature rise to above freezing levels.

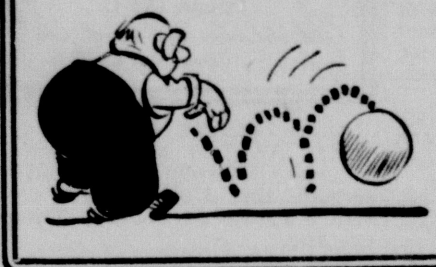

He said a storm centered over the Texas Panhandle this morning would move into the mid-Mississippi valley tonight and the Great Lakes region tomorrow.

The storm brought rain to Texas and Oklahoma and heavy snow to the dust bowl territory. There was 10 inches of snow at Goodland, Kan.

Temperatures in Illinois and Indiana ranged from 28 to 38 today. Downs predicted rain tonight and tomorrow in those two states, and in Missouri, where it may change to snow; rain or snow in Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas; snow in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

THOUGHTS WHILE WAITING

It's tournament week in Dixon starting on Wednesday night. And that means a combination of a lodge convention and a circus coming to town with bands playing, colors waving and cheering for good old alma mater and her boys.

For the performers involved in tournament nights, the situation is a great deal more serious, for of the six high school basketball teams competing, only one will be the champion-ship crew by next Saturday night and only one squad will continue down the path to basketball fame and glory.

The curtain goes up on the Dixon regional next Wednesday in the first act which starts at 7:30 and a bill which presents the cage team of Ashton pitted against Dixon's North Central conference rivals, the boys from Sterling Township high. From then on the pace continues at the rate of two games each evening until the final championship contest on Saturday.

Who the winners will be, no one can be certain, but there's plenty of "dope" which should indicate that the Sharpshooters of Dixon high school will be the chosen few to survive. And this corner is, naturally, wearing the Purple.

However, anything can happen in basketball—as the followers of the game very well know. Take for instance, that invasion of Sterling a few weeks ago when the locals suffered a slap in the face, a bite on the ankle and the chair of victory was pulled out from under them—kerplunk! What happened at Sterling might well happen again, but it doesn't seem very likely with the striking comeback the Purple has made since the "Dark Ages" of the mid-season slump.

Six teams will play in the Dixon regional with anyone of them a possible if not probable winner. Looking around for dark horses, our eyes fall on Prophetstown and Steward. The Prophets aren't so well known in this part of the woods, and their "cagey" tricks might be someone's downfall. It's our guess that at least Paw Paw will find that out in the second game on Thursday night.

The fast-breaking crew of Coach Edward Lemon of Steward offers another hurdle for someone to tackle in the bee-line for the crown. Rock Falls will meet Steward, and look out for those Lee county boys. They have a couple of smart lads in G. Herrmann and Paul Carter—not to forget the rest of those fighters, Wrigley, Kirby, O'Donnell, Chapman and the other Herrmann lads.

Ashton and Amboy have had some tough luck this season, and their records would seem to indicate that nothing short of an upset would toss the championship their way. That's without consulting the cloudy crystal, however, and the word "defeat" used become a game is often a noun without meaning.

To the five schools who will be the guests of Dixon during the tournament, The Telegraph sports department hopes to accord every courtesy and fair treatment—and with that sincere comment on the show, we welcome you all. And in the meantime, we're just a-waiting around, that's all.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tampa, Fla. — Pitcher Ray (Peaches) Davis, last of the Cincinnati Reds to come to terms, said today he was ready to sign a contract with General Manager Warren C. Giles when he reaches the training camp.

Manager Bill McKechnie has issued his first training order: "I'll stand for no carousing around and I want everyone to be in bed before midnight."

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The World Champion New York Yankees listed their first "official" holdout today when Catcher Bill Dickey, one of five unsigned players, failed to report on time for the first training drill.

Avalon, Calif. — The Chicago Cubs are ready to get a flying start on their National League rivals. After working out for a couple of days, Pitchers Bill Lee, Clay Bryant and Larry French began tossing curve balls yesterday. Dizzy Dean is still taking it easy. Praising his team's spirit, Manager Gabby Hartnett remarked, "There will be no clubhouse lawyers on my team if I can spot them."

Hot Springs, Ark. — After a week of preliminary conditioning without giving his reconditioned left arm a trial, Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants has collected a bit of encouragement. Fred Fitzsimmons of the Brooklyn Dodgers, also here for the baths and mountain climbing, told Hub yesterday he had undergone a similar operation and his arm had not given him a bit of trouble since then.

Pasadena, Calif. — After spending their first day in camp at sight seeing, Chicago's White Sox were scheduled to buckle down to work today with calisthenics, fly chasing and easy throwing on the program.

Orlando, Fla. — Clark Griffith, the "Old Fox" of the Washington Senators, is jubilant over a training camp deal with the National League. He borrowed Spanish-speaking Al Lopez from the Boston Bees to coach his Cuban rookie, Roberto Ortiz.

Both the winner and runner-up are eligible for the regional tournament to be held at Mt. Morris starting Wednesday night. Franklin Grove will meet Leaf River in the first game on Thursday evening and Stillman Valley will open the tournament in the game with Oregon on Wednesday.

In the final game Saturday night Franklin Grove and the Valley cagers played on even terms through the first two periods. The first quarter ended four-all and the half score found the count knotted at 10-each. In the third stanza the Franklin boys turned on the heat to ring up ten points and hold the rivals' offense to four tallies.

Stillman Valley came back to score ten points in the final frame. But the Mitchell-men were close behind with nine points for the same chapter.

Roop, guard for the Groves, was high scorer for the game with 11 points from five field goals and one free throw. Zimmerman made six points and Heckman and McDuff each collected five for the winners.

Swanson, forward, scored eight points for the runners-up. Barrick made seven and Sturtevant totaled six.

480 TEAMS STILL FIGURE

IN RACE FOR STATE TITLE

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Four hundred and eighty high school basketball teams, theoretically at least, still have a chance to win the state championship.

"That's the number of teams left in competition after the first week of tournament play. Last week's 61 district meets qualified 112 quintets—winners and runners-up of most of the tournaments—for regional meets this week.

The 112 survivors and 368 other teams make up the field for the regional and sectional events which will reduce the title contestants to 16 teams, which will battle it out three weeks hence in the state championship tournament at the University of Illinois.

Ducats for State Tournament Are Selling Rapidly

Demand for season tickets for the state high school basketball tournament March 16-18 at Champaign is so heavy it is possible no tickets for single night sessions will be available. C. E. Bowen, University of Illinois business manager, warns.

Under the method of distribution decided on by the State High School Athletic association and announced by C. W. Whitten, its manager, no orders for single night sessions will be filled until after March 4 when the sale of season tickets ends.

"A number of patrons who did not understand season orders would be filled first have ordered for night sessions, but under the State association regulations their orders cannot be filled until after March 4," Manager Bowen explained, "if orders for season tickets continue to pour in at the present rate this will take all the tickets and there will be none left to fill applications for single sessions."

Orders for more than 3,000 season tickets have already been received. To take care of the supporters of the 16 competing teams 2,000 more season tickets have been set aside. Thus, more than 5,000 season tickets are already gone, leaving 1,500 available.

Adults' season tickets are $3.50 and high or grade pupils', $2. They provide reserved seats for night sessions and guarantee admission for day sessions when no seats will be reserved.

The time schedule of games is as follows:

TILT OF WEEKEND

Amboy high school's cagers ended their season on a minor key this past weekend when they dropped a game to Polo's champions on Friday night and lost to Rochelle, 39 to 32, Saturday evening.

Rochelle's victory gives the Ogle county revived hope for tournament success after a season of unfortunate defeats by close scores and injuries which have crippled the team.

W. Tigan set the pace for Rochelle against their Rock River Valley conference rivals Saturday when he scored eight field goals for 16 points. B. Tigan marked up 11 points on five buckets and one gift shot.

Griffith, Amboy center, collected 13 points from four field goals and five free throws.

BIG TEN RACE IS CENTERED AROUND
OHIO AND INDIANAMichigan, Purdue Teams
May Decide Which is To Be Winner

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Lowly Michigan and fifth-place Purdue are out of the Big Ten title race themselves, but both will have plenty to say about who wins the basketball championship.

Indiana, conference pace-setter with nine victories in 10 games, plays Purdue at LaFayette tonight. Ohio State, the Hoosiers' only rival for the crown, takes on Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Saturday the order is reversed when both contenders close their Big Ten season. Indiana engages Michigan, which was won only two of nine games, while the Buckeyes, victor in eight of 10 games, plays Purdue.

An Indiana victory tonight would assure the Hoosiers of no worse than a tie for first place even if they should lose Saturday while Ohio State was winning both its games.

Last week's eight games brought the definite elimination of the other three teams in the first division. Indiana dusted off Minnesota Saturday night, 49 to 37, and Northwestern defeated Illinois, 36 to 34, leaving the Gophers and Illini with four losses each and no mathematical chance to catch the two top teams.

Purdue bowed out of the picture last Monday when Illinois trampled the Boilermakers, 35 to 26. In other week-end games, Purdue nosed out Michigan, 29 to 28, and Ohio State kept pace with Indiana by downing Wisconsin, 46 to 38.

Offensive Fireworks

Offensive fireworks were furnished by Indiana's Bill Menke, center, and Ohio State's Jimmy Hull, forward, who scored 28 and 27 points respectively. Hull's performance gave him a total of 138 points in 10 games and the individual scoring lead of the conference, six points ahead of Lewis (Pick) Dehner, Illinois center who led last week.

The relative strength of Indiana and Ohio State is indicated by the fact they split two games and comparative scores against mutual rivals. In winning nine straight games after losing the season's opener, Indiana has averaged 42.9 points and limited the opposition to 34.8 points. Ohio State has averaged 40.5 points, its opponents 35.2.

NEW MEASUREMENTS MAY BE ADOPTED FOR TRACK

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The boys didn't know it, but they planned down a fistful of metric records in the A. A. U. championships just in time. It looks like the United States will be off the metric standard indoors for a long time to come.

The executive committee of the Amateur Athletic Union meeting Sunday with memories of the meet still warm, recommended that future A. A. U. indoor competition be conducted with yards and miles measurements. This action is expected to be confirmed at the annual convention in Miami next December.

The Intercollegiate A. A. A. A., whose indoor championships next Saturday headline this week's track and field program, already has returned to the yards-and-miles system. The national collegiate A. A., whose rules govern the Big Ten championships this week, never left it.

CITY OF DENVER MUST GIVE MORE PRIVATE ROOMS

NorthWestern to Enlarge Popular Streamlined Passengers

Growing demands for private room space on the Streamliner City of Denver has made necessary the construction of extra sleeping cars for this train. Accordingly, it is announced by R. Thomson, passenger traffic manager of the Chicago & North Western, an all-room sleeping car and extra power will be added to the over-night streamliners between Chicago and Denver.

The all-room car will contain four roomettes, three compartments, one drawing room, and four bedrooms en suite, more than doubling the present room space on the train.

To Increase Power

The existing 2400 H. P. Diesel-electric locomotives on these trains are to be converted to 3600 H. P. locomotives by the addition of another 1200 H. P. unit. This will provide the extra motive power necessary to permit the maintenance of the train's normal high speeds, despite the additional weight of the new equipment.

The two City of Denver trains, which attained 1,000,000 miles of service at the end of January, are jointly owned and operated by the NorthWestern and Union Pacific.

New "400" in the Works

The new "400" is "in the works."

The NorthWestern train which "set the pace for the world" in speed, will by mid-summer again set a pace for elegance of design, comfort in riding and safety in travel, when it emerges from the shops, a thing of streamlined beauty. Expert engineers and designers are now at work on these new trains—there will be two—the Diesel power units being built at the Electro Motive Corporation at La Grange, Ill., and the cars at the Pullman Manufacturing plant in Chicago.

The cost of the two trains, which will operate between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis is put at $2,320,000. Of this sum $1,600,000 is for cars, and $720,000 for motive power.

Complete Equipment

Each of the two trains is to consist of ten cars, a tap room-lounge car, four coaches, one diner, three parlor cars and one observation-lounge car. They will be streamlined throughout and will embody the most modern advances in interior lighting, decoration and appointments. The exterior color scheme is to be Armour yellow with autumn brown trim, colors in harmony with those of the fleet of streamliners now operated by NorthWestern to the west coast.

These new "400's" will mark the advent of the first Chicago & NorthWestern streamliners along its famous lake shore route and between Chicago and the Twin Cities; they will also be the first Diesel driven passenger trains of the Chicago & NorthWestern into its northern territory.

On Limited Also

It is also announced that the power plant of the new "400" will be used on the NorthWestern Limited, one of the pioneer trains to operate between Chicago and the Twin Cities, thereby giving the NorthWestern two Diesel powered trains on this run. The power units of each train will house four 1,000 horse power engines, giving each train a total of 4,000 horse power. Being double ended, these engines will permit of being used in the opposite direction each 24 hours for a trip on the NorthWestern Limited.

The regular seating capacity of the new "400" cars will be 317. Accommodations in lounges, smoking rooms and diner of 191, making a total seating capacity of 508, the largest for any similar sized train on the Twin Cities run. Coaches will have a seating capacity of 56 each, the parlor cars 27 each, the diner 55, the parlor-lounge-observation 12, and the tap room-lounge 36.

ANYONE'S HIS CONSCIENCE DOESN'T BOTHER HIM NOW
Cheyenne, Wyo.—(AP)—The moral of this is that even for contributors to the "conscience fund" railroads have no cut rates.

A Salem, Ore., businessman wrote to R. M. Reed, Cheyenne agent for the Colorado & Southern line that 15 years ago he was stranded in Cheyenne and "hopped a freight" to get home. His conscience was bothering him, he said, and if the agent would let him know the price of a train fare from Denver to Cheyenne, the distance he rode, he would send a check.

He added that he thought he should get half price since it was a freight train. Reed replied that the cheapest fare was $2.14, in a coach and he had no authority to make a reduction. Back came the check for $2.14.

Do You Know Illinois

By EDWARD J. HUGHES,
Secretary of State

Q. What town in Logan County was surveyed by Abraham Lincoln?

A. The town of Albany. The town never was settled.

Q. Where is the original plat of Albany?

A. In the office of John Davenport, Bath, N. Y. It bears the inscription: "I hereby certify that the above is a correct map of the Town of Albany as surveyed by me, A. Lincoln." It was dated, June 16, 1836.

Q. Who were the proprietors of the town of Albany?

A. John Wright and John Donovan, the latter called the "Irish Castle Builder."

Q. Where was the town laid out?

A. Near Rocky Ford in W<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> of SE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> of section 6 and W<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> and NE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> of section 7, T. 19 N. R. 3 W.

Q. When were lots last sold on the site of Albany?

A. 1852.

Q. What interesting observation has been made of the Lincoln plat of Albany?

A. Lincoln's survey was exact as evidenced by cartographers' reports that Meridian Street, one of the three streets of the "town," was found to have been surveyed precisely on the Meridian line.

Q. What was the Smithfield Emigration Association of Providence, R. I.?

A. A group in Providence, R. I. 1836 proposed to form a colony to the west on a co-operative basis.

Q. Where was the land which this group acquired?

A. It was comprised of 1600 acres lying between the Kickapoo and Sugar Creeks and between what are now Rocky Ford and Lawndale in Logan County. Each $100 share entitled the holder to an 80 acre of land and a lot in the proposed town of Bloomingdale.

Q. How was the emigration to take place?

A. Three waves of emigration were proposed. The first, consisting only of men, was sent out; the second and third never followed for the severity of Illinois prairie life and particularly the fever and chills took toll of many lives. In 1838 an unsuccessful attempt was made to revive the scheme. Although some lots were disposed of as late as 1842 no town ever existed.

Q. What is the one remaining relic of the "Smithfield Scheme"?

A. The name of the proposed town survives in the Bloomingdale school house.

City of Danzig as the Danzig Senate sent a sharp demand to Warsaw that the Polish government openly disavow agitation for the incorporation of the free city into Poland.

In Rome, the fascist press made it clear that Italy was concentrating current efforts on Poland, apparently striving to weaken France's position as much as possible before making formal colonial demands on her.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York, Feb. 27.—What may prove to be a hopeful word in connection with Europe's muddled affairs comes in a hint by Italian newspapers that British Premier Chamberlain may act as mediator in the explosive dispute arising from Italy's claims to French territory.

The Franco-Italian imbroglio is pressing, and demands quick solution.

Should Chamberlain undertake this mission it would be of the highest importance to general peace.

This Italian report hasn't been confirmed. The British foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, told the House of Lords that neither the Italian nor the French government had shown a desire for "third party mediation." He added that no such move could be undertaken "unless and until both parties desire it."

The idea of mediation by Chamberlain has been cooking up for some time, however. He is regarded by most observers as the one individual in Europe who has the qualifications which would make him acceptable to both sides for such a delicate task.

Has Big Asset

One tremendous asset he would bring would be the prestige of the British empire. And while many people have disagreed with his policies, none ever has questioned his honesty.

The prime minister is generally liked throughout Europe because of his patient almost dogged search for peace.

When Chamberlain visited Mussolini in Rome last month it was widely expected that the Briton would make a hand in the Italo-French affair. France spiked that idea in its infancy, however.

Feeling was running high in France and the government declined to have any foreign nation act as go-between. The French slogan was (and still is) "not one inch of French territory."

Despite this, many observers feel that France might change her mind about mediation. Should that happen, Chamberlain likely would start out with his old umbrella—a symbol of peace—for he is anxious to heal the breach between Rome and Paris.

ROOSEVELT CON- TROL OVER COIN TO BE ATTACKED

Wisdom of "Planned Economy" Questioned by Minority Party

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A committee of House Republicans, recently organized to scrutinize President Roosevelt's emergency powers, swung its spotlight today on his authority to alter the dollar's value.

Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich.) leader of the group, said his committee would attempt to analyze the President's monetary powers during a broad inquiry into advisability of the United States "continuing to live under a managed economy."

The committee's recommendations, Wolcott said, may be completed in time for presentation at a conference of House Republicans this week.

Legislation to continue powers of the Chief Executive to revalue the dollar, which expires June 30, comes up for consideration this week before the House coinage committee.

Charge Power is Lag

Wolcott and some other Republicans argue that uncertainty in the minds of business men as to what use the President might make of the power proved a leading contributory factor to production lags in many industries.

Half the expiring emergency powers employed by Roosevelt in battling the depression already have been re-approved by Congress this session, and there are indications the remainder likewise may be extended.

Already approved for extension by both House and Senate are the lending powers of the RFC, the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Export-Import bank and the Electric Home & Farm Authority.

Those yet to be acted upon, in addition to the President's power to revalue the dollar, included the authority delegated to the secretary of the treasury to help stabilize international finance through manipulation of a special $2,000,000 stabilization fund.

Under present law, the four agencies already continued and the two powers soon to be acted upon expire June 30. Others expiring then, if not before, are provisions for use of government bonds under Federal reserve notes, home modernization loans of the Federal Housing Authority, and the Surplus Commodities corporation.

Chick Business Boosts Indiana Village Income

Ramsey, Ind., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A thriving baby chick business throughout the western hemisphere and which is just now entering its four-and-a-half month rush season, has boosted the post-office of this southern Indiana village of 70 persons from a fourth to a second class rating.

Postmaster Rolla E. Pinaire pointed out today postal receipts had amounted to more than $120,000 for the last three years. He said so far this year they are running nearly 18 per cent ahead of 1938.

Five big hatcheries, which sometimes have 2,000,000 eggs under electrical incubation at once, ship baby chicks a few hours old to every state in the union and to many South American countries.

They gather the eggs from 500 poultry farmers in three counties. The volume of business led one farm magazine to call Harrison county the poultry capital of America.

These hatcheries supply 96 per cent of the patronage of the post-office. One of them alone spends almost $12,000 a year for postage. They ship from a dozen to 100 baby chicks to a box for from 27 cents to $2.50, to any destination that can be reached in 72 hours. Some shipments go by air mail.

Hatchery owners estimate they will ship more than 20,000,000 baby chicks this year.

Peace Without Union in Labor Ranks Probable

By the Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A "peace without union" between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor was being discussed in the capital today as the possible outcome of President Roosevelt's appeal to end organized labor's civil war.

Predictions were general in both government and labor circles that the two organizations, at odds for three years, would be much more likely to arrange a formal division of the union labor field than to merge their forces entirely.

Although some experts were none too optimistic that even such a truce could be reached, they expressed certainty that John L. Lewis of the CIO would follow William Green of the A. F. of L. in accepting the President's invitation to appoint a peace committee.

Lewis was silent during the week-end, but Green promptly selected three officials to represent the federation in negotiations. He said, nevertheless, that the A. F. of L. would not change its fundamental position.

Shortly after Green made known his position, the A. F. of L. yesterday issued a general call for cooperation of government, business, labor and farmers in expanding production and putting men to work. It also suggested creation of a labor council to help advise the government on economic problems.

These proposals, contained in the monthly A. F. of L. business survey, came as a Roosevelt administration campaign to reassure business and industry was going forward on several fronts.

RIVALRY FLARES

Nanticoke, Pa., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Inter-union rivalry flared today in the wake of a futile bid of the American Federation of Labor to recruit anthracite miners of Pennsylvania.

Raucous shouts and scuffling broke up an organization meeting of the Progressive Miners of America last night and officials blamed the disturbance on a CIO "strong arm squad."

Michael J. Kosik, president of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, denied the accusation, but served notice that his strongly-intrenched union would brook no opposition.

"They do not wish any other union that the United Mine Workers to come into the coal fields here or anywhere else," he declared. "They will continue their fight to keep them out."

The Progressive Miners, chartered last year by the A. F. of L., heretofore had confined their activities to the southern part of the anthracite fields.

Employment In Illinois Dropped Off Last Month

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Employment of 6,838 manufacturing and non-manufacturing establishments in Illinois dropped four per cent in January and payrolls fell 3.8 per cent, Martin Durkin, state director of labor, reported today.

The declines, greater than seasonal, were the first decreases reported in both employment and payrolls since July, Durkin said.

"These decreases are largely the result of seasonal reductions in the manufacturing industries and the post-Christmas layoffs in retail trade," Durkin reported.

"As more than the usual number of temporary workers for the Christmas season were added in December somewhat greater than average December—January declines in employment and payrolls were to be expected."

Compared with January, 1938, there was a decrease of 5.2 per cent in employment and 2.3 per cent in payrolls.

There were 31 reports of wage increases averaging seven per cent affecting 763 workers. Six firms reported wage reductions, averaging 14.9 per cent and affecting 87 workers.

The average weekly earnings were $26.11 as of January 15. The average was $28.66 for men and $15.89 for women.

LENIN'S WIDOW, REVOLUTIONIST, DEAD IN MOSCOW

Was no Whit Less Radical Than Father of Sov- iet Union

Moscow, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The widow of Nikolai Lenin, Nadejda Konstantinovna Krupskaya, died today at the age of 70, it was announced by Tass, Soviet official news agency.

No whit less a revolutionist than the father of the Soviet Union, she spent her adult life battling for the overthrow of the czarist system and that accomplished, for the emancipation of women and the wiping out of illiteracy in her country.

A fighter by her husband's side throughout imperial oppression and the dark days of the 1917-20 revolution and civil wars, she carried on after her husband's death on January 21, 1924, as Russia's most militant feminist. She was an energetic speaker and a prolific writer.

Like other women in Russia, she appeared in public, either personally or by print, under her own name. A childless, lonely but still vigorous old woman, she passed her declining years in the apartments within the Kremlin where the high officials of the Soviet government resided, beloved of the masses and known to them as "grandmother of Russia."

She was born in St. Petersburg in 1869. Her father was an army officer of noble birth, but he was poverty stricken and her mother had to become a governess to help support her children. The parents were revolutionary in their ideas and Nadejda inherited her radical zeal.

Her father died when she was 14 and she became a tutor in order to assist her mother. But she managed to get through, the newly-established women's college and was graduated with honors.

Married in Exile

From 1891 to 1896 she taught workers in Sunday schools. Early attracted by the doctrines of Tolstoy, she also studied Marxism through these years, became active in the secret revolutionary circles of the czarist capital and met Lenin.

In 1896 she took an active part in a workers' strike and was sentenced to three years of exile in Shushensk, a village in the Minsk district of Siberia. Lenin also was in Siberia and they were granted permission to spend their exile in the same town provided they would marry. They were registered as man and wife in 1898.

The third year of her exile was spent in Ofa. Then she got an exit passport and went to Munich where she became secretary of a publishing office. Joined there by Lenin, they became members of the foreign league of Russian social democrats, publishing a Marxist paper and working for a centralized "underground" organization to overthrow czarism. Eventually this centralization idea led to the historic 1903 split of the social democrats into mensheviks and bolsheviks, with Len-

All of Chicago Mayoral Candi- dates Confident

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The preliminaries in the campaign for the office of mayor of the nation's second largest city ended today with the four candidates all assured of victory by their managers—in the primary election tomorrow.

A vote of 1,200,000 was anticipated—about 70 per cent of the more than 1,800,000 registered voters—with the nominees to have their names on the ballot in the runoff on April 4.

Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the Cook county Democratic committee, said that Edward J. Kelly, Chicago's mayor for the past six years, would carry every ward in the city. A statement from the headquarters of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Kelly's Democratic opponent, said the prosecutor was preferred "on all sides of the city."

From the Republican side, similar predictions were made by managers of Dwight H. Green and William Hale Thompson, former mayor.

Ferre C. Watkins, chairman of Green's campaign committee, forecasting a victory over Thompson, said "the tremendous vote that will be cast for Green will be the people's call to arms to end bossism and machine politics in Chicago."

A statement from Thompson headquarters said the former mayor was convinced he would be nominated. The people, Thompson said, "have indicated their belief that I could bring back at least a considerable measure of prosperity that Chicago enjoyed during the 12 years I served as mayor."

Obituary

JOHN M. FLEMING

(Contributed)
John M. Fleming, a pioneer of Lee county, was born Aug. 12, 1857, in Marion township. In the early history of Lee county, he was one of the most prominent and one of its most widely known citizens, and was very active in the civic, social and political life of the county.

His early life was spent in Hamilton and East Grove townships where he maintained a vast grazing range, at times totaling 2,000 head of cattle. Later this grazing area was drained by the dredging of Green river, which project he surveyed and saw through to completion. This area now comprises a rich farming tract.

He was an active member of Hamilton township board where he served as supervisor, clerk and assessor, serving in the former capacity 16 years.

Dec. 28, 1891, he was united in marriage to Kathryn Loftus of Dixon. To this union one son was born, John Cleveland, who died in infancy. About 28 years ago, he moved to Plankinton, South Dakota, where he continued his vast agricultural pursuits. Farming actively, maintaining and feeding a large herd of cattle. He also was active in the civic and political life of that community, serving as supervisor and commissioner. Ten years ago he moved to Milwaukee, Wis., where he retired and resided until his passing Feb. 17, 1938, at St. Mary's hospital in that city after an illness of a few months duration.

Funeral services were conducted Feb. 20 from St. Patrick's Catholic church in Dixon and burial was in Oakwood.

He was always held in very high esteem by all who knew him and he formed many lasting friendships wherever he went. During his life time he was known as a perfect host. Both he and his wife were known as one of the most hospitable couples in the county, as well as royal entertainers. The deceased was the oldest of a family of 13, and he was the son of Michael and Kathryn Fleming. He leaves

DEBTORS HELP DOCTOR
BUILD A NEW HOME

Lemon Grove, Calif. — (AP) — After six years of an unusual debt-payment system, Dr. Ebon B. McGregor has moved into a substantial two-story dwelling.

Unable to collect his bills in the worst of the depression, the physician wrote some 50 patients suggesting they contribute their labor in building him a house. Not one refused.

The "first shift" did not complete the house, but subsequent calls on delinquent patients gradually finished it.

Since he had fixed his professional fees, he insisted each worker fixed his own "wages" for construction work.

TRACK SMARTIES
Chapel Hill, N. C. — (AP) — Track work and scholarship mixes well at the University of North Carolina. Three members of the crack two-mile relay team—Dave Morrison, Carlton White and Frank Wakeley, the last an alternate—are honor roll students.

Two other runners—James Davis and Bill Hendrix—also rank high in their studies.
